Agism is discrimination based on negative assumptions about age. Agisms can have a big impact on older people’s lives. It begins with biases that are implicit and obvious, resulting in a tendency to regard older people as destabilized, unnecessary at attention and insurance, unattractive for employment. When older people are not included in discussions about aging, their physical and mental health are adversely affected.

Agism is discrimination based on negative assumptions about age. Agisms can have a big impact on older people’s lives. It begins with biases that are implicit and obvious, resulting in a tendency to regard older people as destabilized, unnecessary at attention and insurance, unattractive for employment. When older people are not included in discussions about aging, their physical and mental health are adversely affected.

Agism is discrimination based on negative assumptions about age. Agisms can have a big impact on older people’s lives. It begins with biases that are implicit and obvious, resulting in a tendency to regard older people as destabilized, unnecessary at attention and insurance, unattractive for employment. When older people are not included in discussions about aging, their physical and mental health are adversely affected.

Agism is discrimination based on negative assumptions about age. Agisms can have a big impact on older people’s lives. It begins with biases that are implicit and obvious, resulting in a tendency to regard older people as destabilized, unnecessary at attention and insurance, unattractive for employment. When older people are not included in discussions about aging, their physical and mental health are adversely affected.